Summary

Wyoming, like its neighbor Montana (#46), has very good federal data related to bicycling and walking. Unfortunately, also like Montana, our data shows that the state Department of Transportation and state legislature do not put a priority on bicycling as a mode of transportation or a driver of tourism. This is particularly apparent in Wyoming which has the lowest category scores in the nation for both Policies & Programs and Evaluation & Planning. Both of these categories are closely aligned with any long-term efforts to improve the safety and mobility of people who bike.

Recent bicycle commuter estimates show a drop in the number of people commuting by bike relative to other modes. Without a statewide strategy or framework for improvement, Wyoming seems liable to continue to slip down our rankings after posting a historical best of #11 in 2009. For citizens of Wyoming concerned with bicycle safety, bicycle tourism, or any other aspect of bicycling, the lack of direction at the state level should be a concern.

Feedback Points

Adopt a statewide Complete Streets policy. The National Complete Streets Coalition has a model state policy and a variety of other resources to ensure adoption and implementation.

In 2016 the Wyoming legislature created a Bicycle and Pedestrian System Task Force. This Task Force is in the process of publishing a report with recommendations on improving bicycling in Wyoming. The creation of this Task Force is a strong sign that the state legislature is aware of the need for better long-term actions for bicycling and the League looks forward to the report and actions taken based on its recommendations.

Wyoming should spend more federal funding on bicyclists and pedestrians. Wyoming has one of the 10 lowest rates of investment in bicycling and walking as a percentage of federal transportation funds. Adopt project prioritization criteria for federal funds that incentivize bicycle projects and accommodations.

Update Wyoming’s state bicycle master plan. Wyoming’s last bicycle plan was adopted in 2002. There is a statewide bicycle plan study done by a consultant for the Wyoming DOT that has been published, but it is not yet adopted. While a study can have an affect on long-term actions, adopting a plan and implementing it in a transparent way is more likely to provide direction to employees of the Wyoming DOT and localities that work with the Wyoming DOT.

\(^3\) FHWA spending is based upon projects coded using any of three project types associated with bicycling and walking projects through the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA)’s Fiscal Management Information System. To calculate per capita spending we used a five-year average for fiscal years 2011-2016 and the 2015 5-year ACS state population estimate.

Allow the flexibility for all units of government statewide to use NACTO and AASHTO standards as well as the state’s own design standards. Or, alternatively incorporate NACTO and AASHTO standards into state design standards and guidance.

Provide specific training to engineers and planners on how to plan, design, and implement bicycle and pedestrian infrastructure, including protected bike lanes, safe rural bicycling routes, and other facilities that have become more widespread in recent years. Significant changes in best practices have occurred recently and training is essential to ensuring that communities in your state have access to the best possible solutions for their bicycle and pedestrian safety and mobility issues.

SMART CYCLING RESOURCES

Bike Safety Education is a key component to keeping roadways safe for all users. Having League Cycling Instructors (LCIs) in your state creates more opportunities for bike safety education to be shared. LCIs are certified by the League through an intense 3-day seminar focused on how to effectively deliver the Smart Cycling curriculum. To host a LCI seminar in your state, contact education@bikeleague.org.
